version: 1 Last revision: 11-06-2019 1:48 PM

Description

A variant of the liana plant harvested in the Amazon, the skin of Guarana is red whilst the inside of the white meat is surrounded by black seeds. These seeds contain many tannins, proteins and starch. Guarana is packed with antioxidants and large amounts of Guaranine which acts as a natural alternative to caffeine. The Guarana seeds are carefully extracted by hand for the highest quality, cleaned in natural water and dried. The dried Guarana seeds are ground into powder in their raw state. This preserves their nutritional value.
